This puzzle marks a notable anniversary of religious significance.

Eight asterisked clues have no definition; their solutions are examples of those who might, in part at least, enjoy a 13. Two (some might argue four) of these are in the plural form. Letters in the highlighted cells can be arranged to give the name of one whose 13 was enforced, and probably endured rather than enjoyed. Solvers should submit this name (6,6) with their entry.

One solution is an abbreviation.

Clues are presented in alphabetical order of their solutions.
